

ABSTRACT*DIGITAL CREDENTIAL MONITORING

5

A computer system comprising a first computer node coupled to a network, the first node being arranged to provide a service to a second computer node via a connection over the network; a controller for determining access to the service based upon a digital credential associated with the connection, the controller being arranged to vary access to the service over the connection in response to a change in status of the digital credential.

10

15